To the planning commission members:

Thank you for continuing to work on this issue, hopefully in the interest of citizens, and not in the interest of industry.

May I refer you to this easy-to-read article in the July/August Sierra Club magazine, as an informative overview...?

<http://www.sierraclub.org/sierra/201207/pennsylvania-fracking-shale-gas-199.aspx>

More importantly, please see <http://www.sierraclub.org/sierra/201207/pennsylvania-fracking-shale-gas-200-sidebar.aspx> and I include one of the comments on this article, with which I strongly agree:

Mary Sweeney · Top Commenter. " While I appreciate the Sierra Club's improved policy on fracking, I am still deeply disappointed that the Club is not calling for a ban on fracking for shale gas and oil.

It is stated above that the Club believes that fracking should not take place "...near drinking water supplies or around schools, state forests, national forests, and national parks." How about fracking that takes place next door to homes, without the permission of the homeowners? Is that okay? How about fleets of fracking trucks that are run through residential neighborhoods? Is that okay? How about frack sand that is mined in states where fracking isn't even occurring? Is that okay? And when the Club refers to "water supplies," does that include private water wells? Because if it does, then that would pretty much preclude fracking in many of the areas where it is currently occurring or is under consideration. And what does "near" mean? A thousand feet, 2000 feet, a mile? Note that even if only "safe" fracking fluid ingredients were used, contamination from naturally occurring substances (e.g. radium) could still occur. At the current time, I don't think anyone truly knows what a "safe" distance would be. And what about the fact that over time, even a good cement job in a wellbore will break down, potentially causing aquifer contamination?

Fracking has a very, very large and harmful footprint not only in space, but also in time, because it has both short- and long-term effects. ALL of that footprint should be considered, not just bits and pieces.

Please, Sierra Club, call for a ban!"

Boulder County is not alone in this fight to protect and preserve our incredible natural resources - we may not presently have the power to ban fracking all together (I presume because the State can overrule us), but there are ways to get it done. The tide will turn, and we should be in the groundswell, if not leading the way. I am very interested in learning more about the idea that was mentioned in yesterday's meeting regarding the County or City purchasing mineral rights, much in the way we have purchased open space for our Green Belt.

Date: Friday, June 22, 2012 5:16:22 AM

Re: June 20, 2012 Planning Commission agenda item #7, Docket BCCP-012-001: Amendments to Oil and Gas Policies

Dear Boulder County Planning Commission, Boulder County staff, and County Commissioners,

On the issue of hydraulic fracturing, the entire county is in a difficult position, those of you in a decision-making capacity and those of us who will live with the result. Although I have concerns with the proposed oil and gas amendments to the Boulder County Comprehensive Plan, I appreciate the hard work put in by our dedicated county staff and the careful consideration of options by the County Commissioners and the Planning Commission.

It is my belief that there are enough inherent dangers involved with hydraulic fracturing that we should employ the precautionary principle and ban it. These heavy industrial operations are incompatible with both our BCCP and the visions most of us have for Boulder County. However, understanding that there are complications, I submit the following concerns with the document presented to the Planning Commission on June 20th:

General Concerns

1. My concerns start with the objective on page 7. This paragraph goes farther than it should, setting a tone for the rest of the document and making a supposed "responsibility" to allow mineral estate property owners to develop oil and gas resources equal to a responsibility to protect "public health, safety, welfare, and the environment." First, it is unnecessary and undesirable to write any responsibility to allow oil and gas exploration and development into our Comprehensive Plan, making it Boulder County policy even if state law should change. Second, we strive to be a "safe, healthy and environmentally responsible county" (as in the County Commissioners' Vision Statement); that should be a much higher priority than mineral development.

2. It should be recognized that fracked well operations as projected are not and cannot be consistent with the BCCP Guiding Principles, particularly #2, #4, and #5. The environmental footprint will be greater, the rural landscape significantly altered, and environmental resources will not be fully protected.

3. Similarly, fracked well operations are not consistent with many of the goals specified in the BCCP's Design of the Region. Farm land will be lost. Natural resources will not be managed in a manner which is consistent with sound conservation practices and ecological principles. Overall environmental degradation will not be reduced, and the development of oil and gas will place undue burdens on the communities that lie above the Wattenberg Field.

4. On page 4 of the document submitted to the Planning Commission, a mandate to reclaim and restore agricultural lands is mentioned, but otherwise the language is weaker throughout the document. There are too many instances of "should," "strongly encourage," "discourage," and "support." Protection of the health, safety and welfare of our county should be mandated. Restoration is important, and so is prevention.

Best Management Practices

5. These proposals rely heavily on the encouragement of Best Management Practices as mentioned in GE 4.01 and GE 4.03. Many BMPs have been written by the oil and gas industry, designed to make the process more efficient, productive and profitable. They are not all "proven" (as stated) to "avoid, eliminate, mitigate or minimize on and off-site impacts." Examples include:

a. An example mentioned in Policy GE 4.03 is waterless fracturing. While water use is certainly a major problem with fracked operations, waterless fracturing involves a propane gel, with the resultant increased risk for explosions. Considering the fact that multi-well pads may be as close as 150-350 feet from dwellings, and that the setback figures were based on possible explosions of a well using 1990's technology, this is dangerous and would not adequately "avoid, eliminate, mitigate or minimize" impacts.

b. Another example mentioned in Policy GE 4.03 is the use of plugged and abandoned well integrity surveys within .25 miles of proposed new well sites. Do we know where all old well sites are in Boulder County? Considering that the reach of a horizontally drilled well can be a mile or more, .25 miles is inadequate, thus not offering enough protection from well "communication" and the possibility of explosions or migration pathways to aquifers and the surface.

c. "Laydown" roads are mentioned as a BMP, but are there BMPs that will address other negative environmental impacts of the truck traffic? These could include the items mentioned in the BCCP: "air pollution, green house gas emissions, noise pollution, water pollution, land and wildlife habitat fragmentation, land disturbance, and resource consumption." Also included should be erosion and sedimentation caused by trucks.

d. The list of BMPs includes complete reclamation and restoration of all disturbed areas, including roads, to their pre-exploration and development conditions. In the case of stream contamination or aquifer migration, is this even possible? Is there "adequate" compensation?

e. Many BMPs address monitoring air quality or groundwater. It should be noted, however, that monitoring alone does not prevent the harm. Unless significant action is taken, mere monitoring will not prevent anything from happening again.

Legal Issues

6. There are reports that the COGCC does not verify mineral rights ownership. If that is the case, there should be required verification of mineral rights ownership. Payment of Ad Valorem taxes by mineral rights owners should be verified.

7. Enforcement is not addressed, nor is the subject of inspections which are, of course, required for enforcement.

8. The same basic standards used for other industries should be used for oil and gas operations.

Economic Issues

9. Will there be sufficient financial bonds and other forms of financial security to restore both agricultural and county lands? Again, what about financial remuneration for lands that cannot be restored?

10. There is no mention of compensation for surface owners and others harmed by this industrial process. Health impacts, spills and the proximity to these operations will impact the bottom line for those living nearby. These impacts include harm to livestock, property values, the ability to sell property and, in some cases, insurance and mortgage contracts.

11. Has any consideration been given to the economic impact of transient workers or the housing needs/requirements on-site?

12. Tourism and agriculture are important to our county. Thus, the result of poorer air quality and visible wells scattered across the county may affect our economy. I don't know if this could be addressed in terms of compensation or zoning.

Air Quality

13. Air is a major concern. There are reports that there is not currently much available storage capacity for natural gas, thus resulting in additional flaring. We live at high altitude and have already had attainment issues. Can air quality non-attainment be used to force standards for flaring and any activities that would cause additional ozone production?

14. Are there BMPs that will address dust and windblown contamination?

Water Use

15. The proposed amendments do not address the quantity of water used in fracking, estimated by the Western Resource Advocates to be 4 million gallons per frack job in the Niobrara formation + perhaps 600,000 gallons for the drilling operation. The transport of all this water should be addressed.

16. County entities should not be willing or able to sell water for oil and gas operations.

17. Water is more precious than oil, and the county should not provide or enable pipelines for additional delivery of water that would be used in oil and gas operations.

Hazardous Material, Contamination and other Safety Issues

18. A new study predicts that frack fluid can migrate to aquifers faster than previously thought. The migration of this fluid under drought conditions should be studied and addressed.

19. The transportation of hazardous materials is a concern that should be addressed. Can limits be made on the size and number of trucks? Are there standards for trucks handling hazardous materials? Can the routes they travel be specified?

20. The hazards of silica sand and worker safety should be addressed.

21. Most construction operations within the county require building permits. Oil and gas operations should have to adhere to any applicable building codes.

22. If requirements for hazardous material do not address faulty well casings (faulty construction, routine operation and vibrations, or expansion and contraction due to temperature), potential storm runoff, pipelines, the potential for spills involving trucks, pit or tank leakage and corrosion, and waste disposal, then they aren't good enough!

23. Emergency planning and funds to address responder equipment and training in the event of spills, fires, explosions, and other incidents should be addressed. The county should not be expected to absorb these costs for gas and oil operations.

24. Livestock and wildlife must be protected from coming into contact with spills, produced water, and other hazards.

25. Wells cannot be fracked indefinitely, and the resource will run out. In the event a site cannot be or is not "restored," the county should be prepared to consider abandoned fracked well sites as hazardous waste sites.

26. Though there may not be much study on the issue, the integrity of our locally-produced food, particularly organic food, should be considered. Soil contamination, ozone, contaminated water, fragmented farmland, and the certification of organic food are issues. Agriculture is important to Boulder County and very much a part of our BCCP.

Miscellaneous

27. Page 4 of the document mentioned "the promotion of natural gas as a 'clean,' more 'environmentally friendly' fossil fuel of significance contributing to a national energy strategy" and suggests that the BCCP should be revised to "capture these movements." The accuracy of those claims is being questioned, and any hint that we want to "capture these movements" should be removed.

28. The noise and the light involved in the drilling operation has an adverse impact on humans, livestock, and wildlife.

Thank you for your consideration.

Hello,

Over the past year I have been working extensively on air quality impacts of oil and gas operation in Colorado and Utah. From the evidence of the largely underestimated pollution from this activities and their detrimental impact on air quality I have become increasingly concerned about oil and gas operation in our home county.

I would like to encourage you to consult with me or many of my NOAA, NCAR, or CU Boulder colleagues who over the past year have conducted a tremendous amount of new research on gas and oil industry impacts on air quality and use this information in directing your recommendations or regulations concerning oil and gas operation.

To The Land Use Planning Division:

My name is Cliff Willmeng and I am an RN and a resident of Lafayette, Colorado. I am writing to you to address the process of hydraulic fracturing that is currently being proposed in Boulder County. I am new to this topic, having moved here from Chicago about three years ago. Even so, no one informed me about the industrialization taking place here until earlier this month.

After weeks of research, it has become increasingly clear to me that the process of hydraulic fracturing is far more dangerous, unregulated, and questionable from both an economic and environmental standpoint, than I originally considered. It is clearly benefiting from a systemic degree of political corruption, and making certain individuals and corporations very wealthy at the expense of our communities and environment.

Among many of my concerns is that a large number of our community members have no idea of what this industrial process is, where it is currently taking place, and where it will begin once it is allowed in Boulder County. We owe it to our community to do something to make the topic one of broad consideration. The gas and oil industry are hoping to move their interests along before these discussions can happen, and with a potential 1800 new fracking wells in Boulder County, people need to be informed. This will affect our property values and the health of our families.

I understand that the State and Federal governments are the ultimate authority of this industrial process, as well, but it would be wrong for us to use this as an excuse not to defy the pollution of our air and water. Slavery was once legal and banning women from voting was at one time acceptable. I am glad we challenged both of those issues and won. Considering the enormous cost to our families and way of life, we should use every bit of our resources to inform and mobilize our community against this process, and keep it from happening in Lafayette and Boulder County.

I would like to see something on the Boulder County website that would help inform the public of this highly dangerous process, and begin a discussion of how to keep it from our community. I think it is the least we can offer. In addition, I believe that we should be providing help to the brave people in Longmont and Erie in their fight against fracking there. There are no air filters between our neighboring towns and what is released into the air next to Red Hawk Elementary School will make its way here.

Thank you for taking the time on this issue. It is certainly not a pleasure to have to deal with this, and the process of fracking is already placing strain on our town. Its also not the most ideal circumstance to meet one's neighbors and local government. But it is truly the most pressing issue we have before us as a community and needs to be front and center of the public.

Cliff Willmeng

I write to implore you to ban fracking in Boulder County. I feel strongly about this since I once worked in the oil exploration industry. The risk to polluting our precious and limited water supply is too high to consider ever where fracking is on private land.

Hydraulic fracturing (fracking) can contaminate our drinking water and harm our communities. Furthermore, the proposals to allow Boulder County Open Space to be fracked are inappropriate on land purchased with tax payer funds to be preserved for public recreation and the environment.

Hello,

My name is Mary Willmeng and I am a resident of Lafayette, CO. My family and I have lived in Lafayette for close to three years and in Colorado for close to four. We moved here from Chicago because we were seeking a safe, affordable place to raise our family while living a nearby the beauty and peace of the Rocky Mountains. We love living here and feel lucky to have found this place.

Unfortunately, we have become aware of something that could compromise the quality of our lives here. We have become aware of the growth of the industrial practice of hydraulic fracturing or "fracking" that is occurring in the neighboring town of Erie and will be making it's way into Lafayette and Boulder county.

Everything that I have seen and read about fracking indicates this is not a process that should be performed in close proximity to any residential neighborhoods. The practice is a threat to the safety of our drinking water through ground water contamination and pollutes our air. Fracking also uses a tremendous amount of water and renders that water unusable due to the toxic chemicals used in the process. It is very disturbing to think about this happening to this place we have come to know and love.

One of the most disturbing things about this is how little the public has been informed about it happening here in Boulder County. I know there is a moratorium on fracking in Boulder County through February 2013. I would say that it is imperative that there be some sort of public forum on fracking that would provide some education and public debate on the issue. If this highly toxic process is going to be performed within feet of our homes, we have the right to understand what it is and we should have the right to be a part of the decision-making process.

As citizens of the state of Colorado and the United States of America, I believe we have the right to choose on the issue of fracking and I believe we have the right to make an informed decision. We should be able to choose the health and safety of our families, our environment, and ourselves over corporate profit and governmental power. As people who are there to represent the interests of the citizens, I hope you would agree. If you are able to uphold your vision statement, I know that you are.

Boulder County Commissioner Vision Statement (excerpt)

- We are a safe, healthy and environmentally responsible county. Our stewardship honors our past and sustains and improves the quality of life for present and future generations.
- We value and provide opportunities for citizens to actively participate in partnerships that enhance and enrich government services.

I appreciate your time and look forward to your reply.
Thank you so much,

Dear planning committee,

This short story, in case you missed it, may be of interest. It's on KGNU's Tuesday Morning Magazine, 12 minutes in. <http://www.kgnu.org/morningmag>

And here's the source material, I believe:

http://landandwaterusa.com/issues_water/2012_water/6-9WeldFarmers.htm and http://www.timescall.com/news/longmont-local-news/ci_20809436/newstip

It's interesting that there seems to be water for hundreds of fracking wells in Weld County, though I don't know whether all of it is being trucked in (at crazy carbon expense and toll on the environment, local citizenry, and our roads), or whether it's coming from the ground water. With Gov. Hickenlooper being pro-fracking, I wonder about his motivation to withhold ground water from agriculture. I could be entirely off base with this, as I am not fully informed on the sources of fracking water, but unless someone can investigate and file a report to clear things up, I would imagine I'm not the only person to have questions and be somewhat suspect.

In your deliberations, I continue to hope that you will give serious thought to preserving and protecting our precious water. Once contaminated with fracking chemicals, the water is not even usable as gray water.

Thank you,

Greetings,

Please represent me, a resident of Boulder County (Louise Brooke, 4642 Burgundy Ln., Boulder, CO 80301), by legislating citizen and environmental protections that would make it impossible to extract fossil fuels from the land in Boulder County.

Thank You

Louise Brooke

Dear Planning Commissioners,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I support a ban on hydraulic fracturing (fracking) in Boulder County.

I urge you to support a ban on fracking and to refrain from doing anything with Boulder County's comprehensive plan that will enable fracking or make an eventual ban more difficult.

Sincerely,

Eric Anderson

As a property owner in Longmont which is near some of the considered drilling sites, I am opposed to the entire procedure anywhere near residential areas, schools, farms and water tables. This is a short term energy solution that will create a long-term problem for communities that will have less water, poisoned farm land from dumping waste products randomly and damaging property values.

Please support campaigns to ban fracking in Boulder County.

I am especially concerned with the huge amounts of water that fracking will use up. We can't afford to diminish our water supply in this way, especially in such a high fire risk year. I've also heard from farmers who won't have adequate water this year. We don't need to frack it away.

Let's preserve the wonderful place we call home.

Dear Mr. Fogg,

I'm writing about the Boulder County Comprehensive Plan updates. Please forward these remarks to the Planning Commission on my behalf.

I have a house guest as I write. He came from the Williston area, in the Bakken oil field.

He's telling me what it's like in the area: inundated by out-of-towners who get the jobs, many of whom are ex-cons; inadequate housing, insufficient sewage-treatment facilities, rising crime and very high cost of living. Furthermore, the schools cannot hire teachers because the teachers cannot afford the housing since the oil boom started.

My guest brought along a newspaper from the area, which I'm reading.

What I read here is that the average wage has increased along with population boom, but the wage increases are not evenly distributed, nor do they necessarily reach long-time residents. Cost of living increases, on the other hand, have skyrocketed and are evenly distributed. This has resulted in a crisis in the public schools, where teachers cannot be hired because housing, when it can be found at all, is out of reach at $3000/month.

I would like to pass along an editorial about roads:

http://bismarcktribune.com/news/opinion/editorial/time-to-bump-up-truck-fees/article_6c846c62-ba1b-11e1-84bf-0019bb2963f4.html

Of course the assumption in this article is that it's up to the state to increase truck permit fees.

My comment regarding the BCCP is this: in response to the concerns of BoCo's transportation department, based in part on the Douglas County study, we should require permits to collect fees for trucks of a certain size (regardless of intended use) to use roads maintained with county money. Counties collect fees for the use of county lands (parks), why not county roads?

Sincerely,
Nancy Hall

Dear Boulder County Commissioners,

Hydraulic fracturing (fracking) can contaminate our drinking water and harm our communities. Furthermore, the proposals to allow Boulder County Open Space to be fracked are inappropriate on land purchased with tax payer funds to be preserved for public recreation and the environment.

As your constituent, I urge you to impose a moratorium on fracking in Boulder County, so that you can investigate all options to place a permanent ban on fracking.

Dear Commissioners,

I'm a newcomer to Colorado and recently retired after a long career in the textbook publishing industry. I bought a home in Lafayette and moved here from Chicago to be near my young grandchildren. The area is lovely and what I thought would be a perfect place for my grandchildren to grow up. Lately, I've read a great deal about the issue of hydraulic fracturing, and I attended a meeting of the Erie Rising group. This issue is extremely alarming to me as a brand new homeowner in Lafayette and as concerned grandmother. I've driven by the well being constructed just yards from Redhawk Elementary School in Erie. Considering the known chemicals involved in this process—and the ones considered a trade secret—I'm appalled! This toxic industrial operation is being allowed in close proximity to homes, schools, and vulnerable children. I understand there are plans to expand this drilling in Boulder County. Count me as someone wholeheartedly opposed. Yes, I'm concerned about the value of my home but more so about my own and my grandchildren's health. The more people know, the more voices you'll hear. This issue needs to be publicized to the citizens of Lafayette and Boulder County, and groups are forming to do just that. I'll be participating in them. I hope you share my concern about fracturing's effects on Colorado, Boulder County, and our own community and citizens.

Subject: Oil and Gas Planning
Date: Sunday, July 15, 2012 9:45:25 AM

My comments are numerous but I will limit them to three pragmatic concerns and mechanisms I think can be used to overcome them.

First, regardless of what else is decided, there should be an aggressive monitoring program of air quality, ground and surface water quality, riparian ecology, and soil vitality. Soils are vital for the integrity of the landscape, and without the microbial life that makes soil a living interface with the earth, it's just dirt. And if dirt gets dry enough it turns into dust, and I don't think people want that given our erosion potential. Establishing and maintaining an integrated database of baseline environmental and ecological data on and around drilling sites and throughout the county generally ought to be pre-requisite for any continued permit issuance.

Second, residents have a right to know if their health may be impacted by nearby drilling activity - and passers by need to know as well. I submit that signage similar to the warnings on gas pumps be placed on both roadways and in public places at a reasonable density within a certain radius of wells. I would also ask that residents be given a regular air quality update within a reasonable radius of the wells, on a monthly basis, just as water consumers receive annually. This could be based on the monitoring data from the previous suggestion.

Third, Boulder County might consider permitting wells on a systematic or programmatic basis. This would allow for a long-term roll out of leases and avoid wild-catters by bringing those drillers into the planning process, under the same regulations and legal obligations and using the same equipment, engineering, and materials. This is highly reasonable for the County as a steward of public and environmental health, and would ultimately expedite permitting and provide for a more predictable regulatory framework in the long term from the perspective of the oil and gas community. This would also allow for a more thorough and less rushed planning period at the outset, crucial for integration of drilling with other resource conservation, economic development, and environmental planning processes. Residents would also benefit immensely because, in effect, they would have time to decide if they wished to continue to live in areas of drilling and, if so, what demands they would seek to make on drillers and elected officials to protect themselves. This can also be integrated with the previous two suggestions as well.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dear Planning Commissioners,

While much more research remains to be done, the EPA has already stated that chemicals from fracking have polluted groundwater in Pavillion, Wyoming.

In addition, we have all seen video of people's tap water becoming flammable in fracking zones.

Would you want your own children to live anywhere close to a fracking site, or drink the water?

As a citizen of Boulder County, I support a ban on hydraulic fracturing (fracking) in Boulder County.

Subject: Protecting Boulder County citizens
Date: Monday, July 16, 2012 9:51:55 PM

Dear Planning Commissioners,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I believe that the health, safety, welfare of the citizens (including you and your families) are at risk if you continue to allow unconventional oil and gas development and drilling in the county (including fracking). Our property values are also at risk - and there is proof that those affected by drilling can't sell their homes and they lose most of their value. Do we want this?

I've read that once the oil and gas companies are in town, you can't get rid of them. Is our beautiful county going to become an industrial wasteland like Weld and Garfield counties?

I'd like you to take a look at these pictures and then tell me that this will benefit us:
<http://www.fractivist.blogspot.com/p/images.html> and <http://www.fractivist.blogspot.com/p/fracking-images-ii.html>

There are no regulations that will protect the citizens of Boulder County from the damage caused by unconventional oil and gas development and drilling. Regulations make things LESS BAD - but do not solve the problem. Therefore, I ask you to support a full ban on unconventional oil and gas development and drilling (hydraulic fracturing or fracking) in Boulder County.

You can make a difference for our future - and your children and grandchildren will thank you for doing the right thing.

Let's ban it once and for all.

Sincerely,

Gentleman and Ladies:

I feel like a mushroom. They keep me in the dark and feed me.....
I have not seen the bad part of "fracking" first hand but have concerns about the use of noxious chemicals employed in ferreting the gas out of the earth in regards to groundwater contamination. Despite the claims/fact that where it's used is far below the water table we draw on for home wells and agriculture, these things can have a way of coming back to bite us in the tenders. I hope you have better information on this subject than I do and will make a sound decision.

Thank you, Gordon H.

Dear Planning Commissioners,

I believe fracking will cause toxic chemicals to leak into the ground and into our water. We don't even know which chemicals will be used, as the companies doing the fracking aren't required to disclose that information to the public. And then there is the issue of flames coming out of faucets in people's homes.

Date: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:00:20 AM

Dear planning committee,

I am sure you are busy preparing for the meeting at our own Courthouse this afternoon. If you can spare a moment, please read the following email, as it may have great bearing on our situation... if we can find no way at the moment to deny fracking in our precious environment..

Thank you.

Subject: County Commissioners to Vote on the 4 Shell Wells - Wednesday 10AM
To: Citizens for Huerfano County <citizensforhuerfanocounty@gmail.com>

IMPORTANT NOTICE --

Please attend the Huerfano Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) on July 18, 2012 at 10:00 AM at the courthouse in Walsenburg.

This meeting is critically important because the BOCC will be deciding whether to approve conditional use permits (CUPs) for the four Shell oil wells in the Gardner area.

There is no public hearing on these permits.

Planning Commission (P&Z) has reviewed the CUPs and has recommended the BOCC attach the following eleven conditions of approval to each CUP: (this is draft language, not exact)

1. A $7,500.00 performance bond per well (or a $30,000 blanket bond for all four wells), in addition to an agreement that Shell will maintain, repair or upgrade all the roads it uses to county standards. This includes dust mitigation on all roads, especially roads near residences
2. All wells shall use a closed loop system
3. Any dumpsters placed on the well site shall be bear-proof
4. The weed control plan shall include lands within 750 feet of the well site and along all roads used by Shell for drilling or hauling operations for the life of the well.
5. Noise mitigation measures shall be utilized at all well sites to meet minimum standards set forth in the current Oil and Gas Regulations
6. No produced water may be used on county roads without first meeting the Clean Water act and be approved by the State Health Department
7. Comply with Dark Sky policy by directing lighting away from residences
8. Notification shall be given to the County if fracking is to occur and should be approved by the County
9. Failure to comply with any of these conditions may result in revocation of the permit
10. Any major changes to any well shall require notification to the county and approval by the county

11. Construction must begin within one (1) year of permit approval

CHC supports these eleven conditions, and we hope that the commissioners will take P&Z's recommendation to attach them to each of the permits.

See you Wednesday 10:00AM at the Courthouse.

Dear Planning Commissioners,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I strongly support a ban on hydraulic fracturing (fracking) in Boulder County. Beyond contamination of water, soil and air, Colorado is a drought-stressed state and should not be selling such VAST quantities of water to oil and gas companies that are in fact both removed from the hydrolic cycle and contaminated back water waste. 17 investigators in the whole state is not an accountable system regulating thousands of rigs and wells. It's physically impossible.

I urge you to support a ban on fracking and to refrain from doing anything with Boulder County's comprehensive plan that will enable fracking or make an eventual ban more difficult.

Dear Planning Commissioners,

As a citizen of Boulder County, I support a ban on hydraulic fracturing (fracking) in Boulder County.

I urge you to support a ban on fracking and to refrain from doing anything with Boulder County's comprehensive plan that will enable fracking or make an eventual ban more difficult.

Sincerely, Carmi Gazit

Citizen Feedback for 7/18/12 Public Hearing to Boulder County, Land Use Regulation, regarding Hydraulic Fracturing for Nat. Gas Drilling

Thank-you very much for your dedicated and important work on the Boulder County Commission. I hope my following input may be helpful to the 7/18/2012 Public Hearing and the related rules development. (John C. Bollinger, PE)

I. SUMMARY:

Even though Federal regulations present formidable obstacles for State/county/municipal governments to deal with, the environmental risks to us of hydraulic fracturing (“fracking”) for oil/gas extraction are too great to passively allow it to be unchecked. Along with probably the majority of Boulder County residents, I support much better regulation of “fracking,” before it is ever allowed on our Boulder County. In short, I:

- Strongly recommend that our County (& other CO gov’ts) extend the moratorium on this practice, until each “fracking” operation can be proven beyond all reasonable doubt to be safe for public health and our environmental over the long-term, to the satisfaction of our citizen-represented local government.

Some examples of proposed regulation development worth evaluating include:

1. Further extend moratorium on hydraulic fracturing operations.
2. Support strict regulation to prove fully safe hydraulic fracturing practices, such as in the recent Boulder County draft regulations being developed. Naturally also evaluate other developed proposed rules, such as from Town of Erie, (which shared 11 proposed rules in the local media), plus Longmont’s 750’ drilling exclusion rule.
3. Require that “fracking” operations are fully proven safe against any risk to UnderGround water reservoirs & aquifer outreaches, while still considering the other public health & environmental risks.
4. Continue supporting our State Congressional & other regulatory proposed Bills & other work that enables better control by State, municipalities & counties over nat. gas fracking.

II. OVERVIEW OF PROBLEMS:

1. WATER & GROUND POLLUTION:

a. This is potentially the greatest & most profound environmental risk. After creating profuse fractured geological layers, pressurized petroleum deposits can then leak into large underground (UG) water reservoirs and aquifers in certain circumstances. In addition, toxic fracking additives, such as petroleum distillates and derivatives, further aggravate the risk. While we may assume there is ample distance between the fractured area and the UG water areas, there have been documented cases where natural gas and toxic chemicals have migrated into drinking water wells after fracturing operations.

b. "Fracking" operations can also cause surface pollution from liquid waste leakage and other sources of ground surface pollution, which can be investigated later.

c. It is most likely extremely difficult to prove where & when the UG pollution risk is insignificant, regarding fracking applications, especially to regulatory agencies and the involved public. The engineers would need to know the complete relevant geological layout of each site affected by the fracturing outreaches, especially regarding the separation from UG water. While conventional oil/gas drilling could occasionally cause some pollution of UG water, the fracking operation exponentially increases the risk. Thus, it is primarily the fracking operation application that must be proven "beyond all reasonable doubt" to be of insignificant environmental risk, in order for the petroleum drilling operation to be approved to proceed, (using applicable local gov't regulation authority).

d. At the very least, it would be reasonable to prohibit fracking operations near the known aquifers. For example there is the Ogallala Aquifer on eastern CO (& other States) and the Colorado Plateaus Aquifer in west CO (& other states), which we cannot afford to pollute with even one mishap from the thousands of planned fracking sites.

2. AIR POLLUTION:

a. Identifiable Emission Points: A good example are the condensate tanks which frequently outgas hydrocarbons atmospherically. For example, as noted in our local paper, EPA has measured propane (plus butane & ethane) levels at 10 times the levels in Erie, as compared to the polluted air of Pasadena, Calif. These emissions can be controlled to prevent atmospheric pollution, even though it requires a substantial equipment cost, as well as the regulation to necessitate it.

b. Note that there are also non-point and non-obvious atmospheric emissions from fracking operations, which are substantial, yet difficult to measure & quantify.

c. GHG Burden: As little as 6% to 8% nat. gas leakage through the whole process of drilling, storing, transporting & utilizing nat. gas can cause more GHG burden than coal burning (for equiv energy content). While previous estimates have been conservatively low at around 2% or 3% nat. gas leakage, more recent estimates are more inclusive of the whole process and show likelihood of over 6% nat. gas leakage.

(Methane is approx. 25 times GHG effect as CO₂, noting the estimate varies over time as they have different GHG half-lives.)

3. ADVERSE LAND IMPACT:

a. The substantial adverse affects on Roadways, such as increased wear and maintenance costs, are explained by Bldr Co. Trans. Dir. George Gerstle in his 277 page report.

b. Other adverse effects to wildlife, agricultural land fertility, noise, dust and more, which altogether create an even more expensive and environmentally large burden, even though difficult to fully quantify accurately.

4. DIFFICULTY OBTAINING UNBIASED AUTHORITATIVE EVALUATION:

- a. Obviously, scientists that are employed or supported petroleum industry, have vested interests to be normally inherently biased, (whether actual or not).
- b. University professors & similar research scientists also can have indirect vested interests with the petroleum industry, as their university or company often derives significant funding from petroleum related industries.
- c. Non-profit Environmental organization specialists may provide valuable information that is not affected by petroleum industry funding, yet these environmental specialists can also be criticized for having a different tendency for bias, (whether actual or not).
- d. While it is very difficult to fully prove the safety against environment risks of fracking, it still must first be done to avoid the aforementioned major problems.

 In short, the petroleum extraction per hydraulic fracturing must be proven safe beyond all reasonable doubt, before it is allowed to proceed by the responsible government.

NOTES:

[1]. USEFUL REFERENCE: Being limited in volunteer time for this issue, it may be helpful to note one of many other very useful authoritative introductory references, such as:
earthworksaction.org/issues/detail/hydraulic_fracturing_101 & its related links.

[2]. It is very problematic to prohibit nat. gas fracturing operations overall, because our whole economy and current survival is dependent upon the relative cheap large amount of nat. gas supply that is enabled only because of hydraulic fracturing. Thus, a more practical long-term approach is to regulate the “fracking” operations as best possible, while supporting rapid enough development in energy efficiency and alternative energy sources. Resulting increased cost of nat. gas would actually be a long-term economic benefit, with increased employment to improve the fracking process and eqpt., plus the energy alternatives relatively more financially attractive. The “Green Tax Rebate” approach can be extremely effective for this essential progress, once it is widely understood and implemented carefully.
